European Chemical Sciences

Zero Carbon Energy – The Future

Mission

- ★ Placing chemistry at the heart of policy and planning in Europe
- ★ Increasing the visibility of chemistry at the European level by speaking with a single voice
- ★ Creating European “corporate identity” among the chemical societies
- ★ Presenting chemistry as an essential and indispensable provider of solutions to global challenges to European and international organizations
- ★ Advising the European Institutions
- ★ Running the very best general and subject specific chemical conferences in Europe

Some Key Figures

- ★ 42 member societies
- ★ 32 countries
- ★  $\approx$  160,000 chemists from universities, research institutes, industry, governmental and professional organisations, >30,000 student members
- ★ Supporting members (ECTN)
